

Dr. Sandra L. Calvert

Dr. Sandra Calvert is a professor of psychology at Georgetown University and is the director of the Children's Digital Media Center (CDMC), a multi-site interdisciplinary research center funded by the National Science Foundation. The CDMC (<http://cdmc.georgetown.edu>) examines the impact of digital entertainment media on children's learning.

Dr. Calvert is author of Children's Journeys through the Information Age (McGraw Hill, 1999), and co-editor of Children in the Digital Age: Influences of Electronic Media on Development (Praeger, 2002). She has served on two committees for the National Academies, leading to two committee co-authored books: Food Marketing to Children and Youth: Threat or Opportunity? (The National Academies Press, 2006) and Youth, Pornography, and the Internet (The National Academies Press, 2002).

Dr. Calvert is a fellow of the American Psychological Association. She currently serves on advisory boards for Cable in the Classroom and PBS Kids Next Generation Media. She provides technical assistance to congress in the development of the Children and Media Research Advancement Act (CAMRA). She has also consulted for Nickelodeon Online, Sesame Workplace®, Blue's Clues, and Sega of America to influence the development of children's television programs, computer and Internet software, and video games.

Dr. Calvert received her doctorate in developmental and child psychology from the University of Kansas.
